1. 'The game will be suspended': Everything we know about the Big Brother COVID-19 lockdowns.

Last night we were given our first look at the Big Brother house in lockdown. The premise for Sunday night's episode, commentary was cut about the COVID-19 lockdown as a crew member was tested for the virus.

"A Big Brother crew member has been exposed to a person who has tested positive for COVID-19. The exposure has been made to pause the game," host Simon Baker explained at the start of the video.

While sitting in the day room the housemates were told the competition would be immediately halted.

by ChloeBishop 27 days ago

Hairspray blew us all away in 2007 with Tracy Turnblad singing her heart out and dancing like nobody's watching. Well, Nikki Blonsky, who played the lead role, has now made a huge announcement: she's gay.

As Pride month came to an end, Blonsky shared her announcement in a TikTok video lip-syncing to Diana Ross' 'I'm Coming Out' in her back garden. The song is a widely-known Pride anthem, so Blonsky didn't have to say anything for fans to understand what she meant by the video.

Oh no! July is two days away, which means Pride Month is almost over. Back to our regularly scheduled hetero-hellscape til next June. An especially big bummer since most Pride celebrations were canceled because of COVID-19. But that gross ol' homophobic virus didn't stop Taylor Schilling and Nikki Blonsky from coming out on social media!

Taylor, of Orange is the New Black, has always been pretty private about her love life. In the past, she's refused to comment on rumors she dated Carrie Brownstein, and she once said that she was an "expansive human" who rejects labels. Well, this past weekend she put a label on it. AKA some heart and rainbow emojis. Artist Emily Ritz posted a pic of herself and Taylor on her Instagram story, with the caption, "I couldn't be more proud to be by your side @taylorschilling. Happy Pride!" Taylor reposted it to

Nikki Blonsky has one female ex

Nikki Blonsky has opened up more about her dating life, a few days after coming out as gay.

1 July 2020

Nikki Blonsky's first same-sex relationship only ended this year.

Nikki Blonsky

The 'Hairspray' actress - who revealed over the weekend that she is gay - had a "wonderful" introduction to dating other women but didn't think their romance would ever work out.

She said: "I had a girlfriend, ex now, but we didn't part on bad terms. I think she's wonderful. I will always wish her well, but it was just simply it wasn't going to work. She was a wonderful first female for me to be with.

"It's been officially over since January. It was, uh, it was just this year.

"Everything happens for a reason. I'm now seeing what's the future holds for me relationship-wise, who knows, but I'm not going to lose sleep. It is what it is."

The 31-year-old star previously had a non-binary partner but is currently single, which she's

Nikki Blonsky on Coming Out as Gay: "It Was a Long Time Coming"

Nicholas Hunt/Getty Images

The 'Hairspray' star used TikTok and Diana Ross's iconic gay anthem to announce, "I'm coming out." She opens up to The Hollywood Reporter about joining a community that had already embraced her, texting John Travolta the news and why she's still shaking.

The first thing Nikki Blonsky said when getting on the phone to discuss how she came out over the weekend is apologize.

"My voice is a little hoarse because I've literally been doing nothing but singing Debbie Gibson and 'I'm Coming Out' by Diana Ross all weekend," she told The Hollywood Reporter early Monday evening.

Her voice — the one that helped land her a breakout role at 17 in Adam Shankman's 2007 musical Hairspray — was raspy but not enough to quiet the excitement of sharing her experience as a new member of the LGBTQ community, announced just days before the end of June's Pride month. Blonsky, now 31, opened up on the surprise announcement, fielding reactions

Hairspray star Nikki Blonsky is coming out!

On Sunday, the 31-year-old actress and singer took to TikTok to announce that she's gay during the last few days of Pride Month by sharing a video of herself lip-syncing to Diana Ross' iconic hit 'I'm Coming Out'.

In the clip (watch it above), the actress can be seen dancing around in grass while wearing an all-black outfit.

"Hi, it's Nikki Blonsky from the movie I'm Gay! #pride #imcomingout #hairspray," she captioned the video on her TikTok profile.

The caption also appeared to be a reference towards the popular meme, "Hey, it's Nikki Blonsky from the movie Hairspray", which was inspired by her habit of regularly reminding fans that she starred in the musical film.

The actress also tweeted out the news and was flooded by fans' messages of support.

"Happy #Pride to my queen, a true gay icon @NikkiBlonsky," wrote one fan to which Blonsky responded with, "Thank you Alex!"

Another wrote, "Nikki Blonsky from the movie hairspray coming out on tiktok just saved 2020 I think."

In May last year, Blonsky opened up to E! News about her relationship with her partner Dani.

"I am the happiest I've ever been in my current relationship. [I] am excited for the future, both personally and professionally."

Why Hairspray star Nikki Blonsky's career didn't take off after 2007 film

Nikki Blonsky was the breakout star of one of the most popular movie musicals – Hairspray – in 2007. But she has since completely disappeared from the big screen.

4 comments

news.com.au JULY 11, 2020 8:54PM

At the time of its release in 2007, the star-studded movie Hairspray became the third musical film in history to gross $200 million internationally, trailing only the likes of Grease and Chicago.

With a glittering ensemble including John Travolta, Queen Latifah, Michelle Pfeiffer, Christopher Walken, Zac Efron, James Marsden, Amanda Bynes and Brittany Snow, the film – which streams on Binge – was destined for commercial acclaim.

While most of the principal cast were A-listers, producers were adamant they wanted an unknown actress to play the titular character of Tracy Turnblad.

And so a then 18-year-old Nikki Blonsky, who was working at an ice cream shop in New York when she auditioned. landed the role of a lifetime.

Nikki Blonsky texted Hairspray co-star John Travolta about sexuality reveal before telling fans

01 July 2020

Newsdesk

SHARE WITH:

Hairspray star Nikki Blonsky told her 'movie mum' John Travolta she was gay before telling the world via video-sharing platform TikTok on Sunday, because she wanted him to hear the news from her.

Nikki played Tracy Turnblad, opposite Travolta, in the 2007 film version of Hairspray, and felt she owed it to him to reveal all about her sexuality before sharing the news with fans.

"I did not want the person who played my mother to have to find out about this from anybody else," the actress tells The Hollywood Reporter. "I felt the need to tell him myself, so I texted him and we had a lovely conversation.

"I love him with all my heart. I couldn't have been more honoured to have played his daughter. He is one of the finest human beings you're ever going to meet."

Nikki came out while dancing to Diana Ross' hit tune I'm Coming Out in her backyard in the TikTok video as she celebrated Pride over the weekend.

"Hi, it's Nikki Blonsky and I'm coming out! #pride," she captioned the video.

She then added in the comments: "It's incredibly true!!! Thank you so much for the love and support!!"

Nikki Blonsky has come out as gay

The 'Hairspray' actress marked Pride on Sunday (28.06.20) by revealing she's attracted to women in a fun video shared to Tik Tok

2 July 2020

The 31-year-old star posted a clip of her dancing to Diana Ross' single 'I'm Coming Out' and captioned the video: "Hi, it's Nikki Blonsky and I'm coming out! #pride (sic)"

Nikki later took to the comments on her post to thank fans for their support.

She wrote: "It's incredibly true!!! Thank you so much for the love and support!"

The 'Queen Size' actress recently spoke of how much it means to her to be a body positive role model and she is "inspired" by knowing she inspires other women.

She said: "Absolutely the fact that they feel empowered by me just being myself because that's all I'm doing, it really means a lot.

"It inspires me because I find them inspiring."

When it comes to her own role models, Nikki looks up to those who "give it their all", regardless of their career.

She said: "Actors and performers, they're wonderful, but I find the people who every day give it their all in every aspect, whether they're a performer or not, those are the people that I respect and look up to.

"So you could be a doctor, you could wash windows, I don't care. If you have passion, then I respect you."

Nikki advises all her fans to follow their dreams, and ignore those trying to "rain on [their] parade".

Asked what advice she'd offer, she said: "Keep going. Never stop for anyone or anything.

"There's always going to be somebody who's going to try and rain on your parade, always somebody who's going to try and make you throw in the towel, toss in the wrench. Always.

"But you have to find it within yourself every single day to keep going and to persevere and to rise above and take the high road."

Hairspray star Nikki Blonsky has come out publicly as gay.

The singer and actress made the big announcement on Sunday (June 28). "Hi, it's Nikki Blonsky from the movie ... I'm Gay! #pride #imcomingout #hairspray," she wrote alongside a TikTok video.

In true fashion, Blonsky used Diana Ross's iconic song, "I'm Coming Out," to reveal to her followers that she is part of the LGBTQ+ community. She frolicked in her backyard and danced to the beat while lip-syncing to the song.

She followed up her viral TikTok with an Instagram post that simply read, "I'm gay," with rainbow confetti.

In May 2019, the 31-year-old actress revealed that she has been in a relationship with someone named Dani, who identifies as non-binary.

The actress taking part in Tracy Turnblad in 'Hairspray' opens up about her sexuality via a TikTok online video that captures her dancing to Diana Ross' strike track 'I'm Coming Out' in her yard.

"Hairspray" star Nikki Blonsky informed her 'movie mum' John Travolta she was homosexual ahead of telling the earth by using online video-sharing system TikTok on Monday, June 29, simply because she wished the motion picture star to listen to the information from her.

Nikki performed Tracy Turnblad, reverse Travolta, in the 2007 movie variation of "Hairspray", and felt she owed it to him to expose all about her sexuality ahead of sharing the information with enthusiasts.
